The Hotel Hassler cited in The Great Beauty (La Grande Bellezza) of Paolo Sorrentino:

During the dinner party held at Jep Gambardella’s house with the Cardinal and the saint…

- (Dadina): Sister Mary, in which convent are you staying these days?

- (Assistant to the saint): Actually, we are sleeping at the Hotel Hassler, at Trinità dei Monti.

- Nice!

- (Assistant to the saint): To be honest, Sister Mary finds it uncomfortable.

- (Lello Cava): It’s the first time I hear that the Hassler is uncomfortable!

- (Assistant to the saint): It’s very comfortable! It just that Sister Mary is not used to sleeping in a bed. She always sleeps on the ground in a bed made of carton.